

WHAT'S LEGAL ABOUT YOUR HEALTH?

Speakers • Authors • Sisters • Cancer Rights Attorneys

Joanna Fawzy Doran and Monica Fawzy Bryant have a combined 40 years of cancer rights law experience. Together, they have co-authored the only book on the topic. Cancer Rights Law: An Interdisciplinary Approach was published by the American Bar Association in 2018.

They have presented more than 1,500 educational seminars for individuals who have been diagnosed with cancer or a serious medical condition, their caregivers, lawyers, advocates, health care professionals, elected officials, and the general public.

Doran and Bryant co-founded Triage Cancer in 2012, which reaches more than 1.3 million people annually. The organization takes complicated topics like health insurance, employment rights, and navigating medical bills and translates them into terms everyone can understand. Making these topics more accessible allows people to avoid financial toxicity, stay in their homes, and keep their jobs. In 2023, they created Triage Health to ensure everyone has access to this information.

Doran and Bryant publish regularly in professional journals and books and provide expert media commentary. Bryant is an adjunct professor at the University of Illinois at Chicago School of Law. Doran has been an adjunct professor at Loyola Law School and Wayne State University Law School.
